ROB BLACK SUPPORTS
"CARE NOT CASH," CHRIS DALY OPPOSED IT.

District 6 voters frustrated with homelessness now have a clear choice for supervisor: Rob Black. The current supervisor, Chris Daly, has fought new ideas. Rob Black has worked to change San Francisco's cash-based welfare system.

ROB BLACK
FOR SUPERVISOR
THE CLEAR CHOICE FOR DISTRICT 6

ROB BLACK: EXPERIENCE AND NEW IDEAS FOR HELPING TO END HOMELESSNESS

- Advocates supportive housing with case management and wrap-around services.
- Called for hiring more outreach workers to help homeless leave the streets for housing.
- Pushed for increased services for at-risk populations (seniors, families and veterans).
- Supports increased enforcement of panhandling and quality-of-life laws.
- Chief of Staff to Supervisor Michela Alioto-Pier.
- Endorsed by Mayor Gavin Newsom.

WE SUPPORT ROB BLACK

"I strongly support Rob Black for Supervisor. He is committed to working with all the people of District 6 for a healthier, safer district and City."

MAYOR GAVIN NEWSOM

"Rob Black has spent hours on the phone and on the street helping everyday people get the help they need from City Hall. He'll make a great Supervisor."

SUPERVISOR MICHELLE ALIOTO-PIER

"For community policing to work, our officers need help and resources from City Hall. Rob Black will help San Francisco police officers put an end to gang violence in District 6."

GARY DELAGNIES, PRESIDENT,

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE OFFICERS ASSOCIATION

"Small businesses provide the majority of jobs in San Francisco, but many are hanging on by a thread. Rob Black will help small business people in District 6 keep our city economy growing."

break the rules, Chris is going to come after you. Chris is an old-style, Chicago politician. He hands out favors, and he hands out pain. Everybody I approached said, "Your cardinal sin was running against Chris."

Chris Daly will profess Sunshine, openness, democracy, public input and all those beautiful elements of our governmental process. But when push comes to shove, he punishes a person for running for office. He punishes a group who tries to help people get ahead, rather than keeping them down.

West Bay Filipino Multi-Service Center

"Daly, with the tacit approval of Ammiano, has pulled off a political maneuver that threatens to kill off West Bay Filipino Multi-Service Center, a longstanding provider of everything from senior meals to breast cancer services. On Sep. 29, West Bay before the Budget and Finance Committee to seek release of some $251,000 in city funds it was due for its work providing services to S.F. residents...The funds had been frozen this year by Daly who questioned West Bay's involvement in alleged Medicare fraud activity at the Wilson Fung Medical Clinic.

"An audit by the city's Office of the Controller, found no evidence that connected West Bay to the Wilson Fung Medical Clinic's alleged fraud. West Bay merely sublet space to the clinic, and was the landlord of the clinic."

How else can we put it other than the above quote? The West Bay staff were no friend of Chris Daly. They did not support his 2002 re-election bid. When Daly saw the opportunity, he took it. A subtenant of West Bay's facility engaged in some allegedly fraudulent Medicare billing. West Bay was connected, but that didn't matter to Daly. He took the opportunity to strip this center for Filipino seniors and needy residents of its funding.

Cronyism, Business as Usual

On June 26, 2006, the Chronicle's Matier and Ross reported the following:

"Just how did housing activist Richard Marquez -- a longtime friend and former roommate of San Francisco Supervisor Chris Daly -- end a $7.7-million-a-year job as a San Francisco housing inspector after initially being bumped as unqualified? Department of Building Inspection employee Garland Simpson -- who was passed over for the same job -- wants to know, and he's filed a protest with the city's Civil Service Commission to get some answers."

"At the time (and still...), we wanted to know how such a story could get about 450 words in the press and nothing more. Marquez is anything but "under the radar." He is easily Daly's #1 Lieutenant, a "social justice" gadfly who has raised Cain on behalf of virtually every pet project of Daly's tenure, and is quite likely the Regressor: heir to run for Daly's seat someday. He has donated to only the most extreme left candidates, including $1000 to Daly. But most notably, he is without argument a social worker with zero experience in construction, planning, architecture or comparable "building inspection" type expertise.

There is no question that this is a two-pronged political play: scratch Marquez' back by giving the Daly ally a cushy City job (with benefits the package exceeds $100,000, and don't forget the almost instant lifetime pension), while scratching Daly's back by placing his right-hand man inside a power-trunking arm of City government.

If there's any question that Marquez is purely a lefty political pawn, please review:

- <http://www.beyondchron.com/news/index.php?itemid=1412> -- "Marquez has built tenants' rights coalitions, organized movements against police brutality, and coordinated volunteers for both Matt Gonzalez's mayoral campaign and Ross Mikami's recent victorious bid for Supervisor. Marquez currently works for Mission Agenda, a tenants' rights organization he helped co-found with Supervisor Chris Daly..."
- <http://www.mattgonzalez.com/index.php> - another ringing endorsement.
- <http://www.sfpd.org/site/Default.aspx?page.asp?id=31365> -- Marquez rallies against Care Not Cash...via Chris Daly's (taxpayer sponsored) blog.
- <http://www.dailymail.com/news/index.php?itemid=1455> -- Marquez criticizes community policing calling it "piecemeal, token gestures" that "divert resources from the social safety net to law enforcement." That's right...he opposes "diverting resources TO law enforcement."
- <http://www.sfpd.com/news/510103move.html> -- Here Marquez emerges in the center of the Mission Housing Development Corporation scandal involving Daly and Ammiano. "What we all have in common is that the Planning Department has passed us off...Whether that's through district elections or civil disobedience or shutting down the highest levels of city government...People are tired of writing letters to the editor. Remedies are exhausting themselves." Just the mentality you want in DBI.
- <http://www.sfpd.com/news/2006/05/02/news/smith.html> -- More on Mission Housing.
- http://www.sfpd.com/archives/2002/02/04/44_fires_part_daly.php -- Richard Marquez of Mission Agenda comparing protests against fare hikes in other cities to Rosa Parks and that the hikes constituted "institutionalized racism and class discrimination."
- http://projects.siu.edu/opjournal/html/2001_Sepember/004545.html -- Marquez is an opponent to our Olympic bid efforts. "We have high hurdles if we want to defeat the games," said Richard Marquez of housing advocacy group Mission Agenda. We need to start now with a regional network of homeless coalitions, immigrant groups, neighborhood groups, and taxpayer watchdogs. For a model, Marquez looks to Toronto's Bread Not Circuses, which successfully blocked that city's 1996 and 2008 Olympic bids."
- http://www.sfpd.com/archives/2005/06/midmarket_devel_1.html -- A leader in the "cleaning up a neighborhood equals gentrification" logic, Marquez prefers the current soupool of 6th and Market, 7th & Market, or United Nations Plaza to a refurbished Mid-Market rejuvenation. "This is the final nail in the coffin in terms of pushing low-income people out of this portion of San Francisco."

Public Forum, Personal Rant

Politics, policymaking, and ultimately government and law are all about public discourse. There is an appropriate forum for differentiating yourself from your opponent (the campaign trail). There is an appropriate forum for debating issues with colleagues (the legislative chamber). There is plenty of room for disagreement.

Then there is the Daly Blog, Chris Daly's website home to his spewing rants. This is where he berates all who disagree with him. He'll bemoan the Chronicle, the Sentinel and other press who dare shed light on him. He'll tear into his fellow Board members if they don't support his measures. He'll utterly clobber over the Mayor. He'll openly campaign for himself and his agenda.

"I've not done well in the newspaper coverage," he says. "The Internet is a way to get my message out to people who are wired." He so firmly believes that that he even passed legislation ensuring that he could have such a site. But why? Why would his personal site be scrutinized for its legality or appropriateness? Because this isn't his personal site. This is his taxpayer funded, city-staff managed, official supervisor's home page.

Anti-SFPD

In 2002, Daly posed for the now famous photographs that framed his opinion of police officers and the SFPD. While some might find protesting and standing up for a cause admirable, in no way is it admirable to scream in the face of an officer and threaten to sue your political power in retaliation. Yet, "I will have your job," were the words Daly shouted at Officer James Rordan.

He went on flexing his muscle, according to the Chronicle: "They, I am a supervisor", Daly said repeatedly, but after the officer twisted his wrist, he finally gave up, Rordan reported. At one point, after he was arrested, he asked for Rordan's name and badge number."

He further threatened to call the president of the Police Officers Association, coupled with a veiled threat to use his power as supervisor to affect the next police union contract. Then of course he "denied that he said he would have Rordan fired or that he identified himself as a supervisor. Not true. Not true. Not happen," he said."

Daly never looked back from that point. His opposition to SFPD has been notable. He has held up funding targeted to pay a class of police recruits, delaying that many more officers from reaching active duty. He opposed funding for more police officers, and instead sponsored a (failed) bond measure that would have shored money into community anti-violence non-profits (a slush fund for the placement of Daly cronies similar to his Rincon Hill deal). He even extended his attempted gun ban to include retired officers.

Is it so hard to BE NICE?

Perhaps the most alarming aspect of Chris Daly as an office holder is his own mental health. Time and time again he has shown himself to be incapable of managing his emotions. He, in no exaggeration whatsoever, throws temper tantrums equivalent to that of a 4-year-old when he doesn't get his way.

Daly has been witnessed in both the public forum and privately behind-the-scenes many times screaming threats at fellow Board members, staff, other governmental colleagues, constituents, and the aforementioned police officers. His words are violent, and his delivery is a precursor to violence.

His actions cannot be dismissed as "passionate." It isn't even just a matter of poor manners and decorum for a public official. His actions are bona fide dangerous. They intimidate many who then feel they cannot participate in the public

Do this now:

1. Volunteer for the campaign against Daly at www.dumpdaly.org.
2. Make CERTAIN that you are registered to vote at your current address. Text the word "dumpdaly" to 75444 on your cell phone, or visit <https://ovr.ss.ca.gov/votereg/OnlineVoterReg> to register electronically.
3. Investigate the challenger candidates. Rob Black (www.robblack2006.org) is endorsed by the Mayor, the Police Officers Association, several Supervisors and other civic groups. Matt Drake (www.mattdrake2006.org) is a lawyer, also a legitimate candidate and shares a quality-of-life message. Many other candidates, however, are theater, as bad as Daly. Educate yourself. Under our Ranked Choice Voting system, you are allowed to vote for THREE candidates, your first, second and third choice. And you CAN leave your second or third choices BLANK.
4. Vote in the November 7th election, and leave Chris Daly completely OFF your Ranked Choice Ballot! If Daly is even listed as a second or third choice, this system will allow him to win.

When we all do better, we all do better!
Promote policies for everyone.
Stop the Daly agenda now.

Subject: Push/Pull from downtown/Mayor

1st. Sorry I didn't make it to TI, but I told you earlier I wasn't planning on it partly because I'm nursing my back.

It's good I didn't because I was able to overhear a push poll my roommate received from Pacific Crest Research in Fairfield.

My roommate is a longtime D6 tenant, single white professional woman who votes in every election and is a registered Dem.

She is frequently polled.

Questions:

Right now, who are you supporting? CD

If the following candidates were running, how inclined would you be to vote for them.

Katz, Black, Josie Moonie (strange), O'Connor (would he move?), Crowfoot, former taxi Driver guy, Giants Owner (?). No Thigpen.

What Issues important to CD?

Feelings about how important the following issues are:

SF education system
panhandlers and petty crime reducing homelessness public healthcare unfair evictions
major crime
street cleaning
rec and park
home buying opportunities parking

Gang violence

How good a job Newsom is doing?

How good a job BOS doing?

How good a job CD is doing on above issues?

Push/Pull ?'s

CD's aggressive manner

CD intimidated Michaela Alioto and faced censure at BOS.

CD is against SFPD

CD does not support safety cameras

Mayor does not support CD and their relationship is always contentious.

T or F

Downtown and Big Developers are persecuting CD

CD accepts money from Big Developers

CD is a true progressive

If you knew that the following were true, how likely would you vote for CD:

Burton/Migden support CD

The guy divulged that my roommate was the first person today to completely support CD and he was getting the idea that CD was a bad guy (strange)

SF SOS District 6 meeting - 10 am tomorrow (Saturday 4/8)

This is a final reminder that SFSOS member Jo Aranda will be hosting another in our series of District 6 house parties this Saturday, April 8, from 10 am to 11 am.

As always, our goal at these events is to update our supporters on our efforts toward standing up FOR the District's quality-of-life and standing up TO Supervisor Chris Daly. We need to mobilize the D6 residents to take an interest in their neighborhood. Beyond that, we aim to introduce like-minded neighbors to one another, network over common interests, and simply engage in social discussion.

Coffee and light pastries will be provided. Our host lives just a few blocks from the ballpark, so we're on the way to Saturday's Giants day game. The rain is certain to stop by Saturday, so you have no excuse for not coming by to say hello and speak your mind!

Because Jo lives in a guarded building, RSVP's are necessary to allow building entry. So please respond to ryan@sfsos.org (or 397-3767) if you can make it, and I will reply with the specific address.

Best,

Ryan Chamberlain
Field Director, SFSOS

Subject: Dump Daly! Join next SFSOS House Party July 25

You're Invited...

Democracy Works Best When Citizens Are Actively Involved

Greetings to our Mission area SFSOS supporters:

SFSOS supporter Douglas Jackson will be hosting us for our next house party from 6:30-8pm on Tuesday, July 25.

The focus will again be on organizing our opposition to Supervisor Chris Daly, whom we argue is a citywide problem. We are hosting house parties in every district, asking them to help in the "Dump Daly" effort in District 6. Here we are specifically turning to our District 9 residents, asking you to get involved.

Our continuing series of house parties is designed to raise voter awareness, inspire participation in the elective process and, most importantly, to advance a common message (quality-of-life) and goal (replacing Daly!).

Please join us to help start making a difference at City Hall this November.

Our space limits us to 25 people, so we must ask for an RSVP in advance. Please contact ryan@sfsos.org to attend, and I will reply with the event's location.

We look forward to an energetic and engaged turnout. Have a great week, and best wishes to everyone.

Sincerely,

Ryan Chamberlain
